

Murray Green

Murray Green is Director of ABC International, a newly created entity of the Australian Broadcasting Corporation. ABC International consists of Radio Australia; the satellite and subscription television service the Australian Network, broadcasting to 41 nations in the Asia Pacific; International Projects; and International Relations.

He is a lawyer, has an honours degree in Pacific and Asian History and is a graduate of the Australian Film and Television School.

Murray Green has worked as a reporter, producer, station manager and was the ABC's inaugural internal ombudsman reviewing audience complaints about editorial inaccuracy, lack of balance and impartiality. For the last decade he has been responsible for monitoring ABC performance in covering state and federal elections.

He is also Director of Corporate Strategy and Governance for the ABC with responsibility for corporate planning and performance including compliance with the ABC Charter and other relevant legislation. The Strategy and Governance group consists of audience and consumer affairs; audience research; corporate planning and the eight state and territory directors. He has recently led the review of ABC Editorial Policies.
